

PLUNGED STOLEN MILLION IN MINE; DIED A PAUPER

George M. Wagner's Dream of Great Wealth Lured Him to Betray Widows and Orphans.

A dream of untold wealth to be wrested from the earth was the lure that impelled George M. Wagner, club and society man, respected custodian of a million dollars belonging to widows and orphans, to violate the confidence reposed in him and risk his honor and their money as a single chance.

Wagner took the chance and lost. He died a pauper a few days ago in a New Orleans charitable institution. He had clung to his dream of riches until the last of the fortune, with which he fled this city in May, 1913, was gone.

Since that time Wagner had wandered about the country, a fugitive from justice. He never stayed long in one place; he did not dare. Those he had betrayed were hunting him. Somehow he managed to keep just out of the reach of the law, but the clutch of it was ever just behind him, driving him from city to city and from State to State until death overtook him.

RISKED CAPTURE HERE.

This story, the truth at last about George M. Wagner, became known today through the police. It became known also that on May 16, just seven days after he had disappeared, Wagner calmly risked capture and disgrace by coming back to this city and going rapidly over papers in his office at 300 South 11th street. How he eluded the police and accomplished this has not been made known. It never will be, in all probability, for the lips of the only man who could tell have been sealed by death.

Wagner died under the assumed name of Charles Smith. His body will reach this city next Monday. Identification was made today by Joseph Carson, trustee in bankruptcy for the Wagner estate, and by T. B. Carson, an attorney, who went to New Orleans when they heard of Charles Smith's death. Two aged women, his nearest kin, will see that his body is buried in the Wagner family plot. They have forgiven him, although they had much to forgive. Each was tricked by Wagner. One is his aunt, Miss J. Wagner, 480 Germantown avenue; the other is his stepmother, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Wagner, of Lansdowne, with whom he lived before he fled.

TO SEE LOOT ON DISPLAY

Booty Found in Alleged "Fence" Will Be Shown in Court.

Three hundred men and women victims of burglars applied to downtown police stations today to identify their property in the $8000 worth of loot the police recovered from an alleged "fence." They were informed they would have opportunity to inspect the booty next Monday night at the Central station, where new exhibits of all kinds of jewelry and valuables will be held that night at City Hall.

Victims of burglars from all parts of the city will have a chance to search through the treasure for their property.

Another batch of jewelry was obtained by the police today, they say, from the safe at the store of Charles White, 1225 South Second street, the jeweler under arrest on the charge of buying $60,000 worth of stolen valuables from thieves.

White, whose arrest was made possible, the police say, through the confession of William Foley, Carpenter street near Second, that he had perpetrated 13 robberies within the last few months and that White had bought the proceeds, said always told him they had bought it at auction. He and Foley are being held in $5000 bail each for a further hearing.

John Deal, Moyamensing avenue above Reed street, one of the many who applied hoping to identify stolen property today, told the police that by a peculiar coincidence he had an alarm clock at White's store for several days, undergoing repairs. Deal lost $1200 worth of valuables when burglars visited him some months ago.

According to information obtained today by the police, one of the men who sold his loot to White has a bank account and a house and lot. He is said to be Henry Stosky, who is now serving a term in the Eastern Penitentiary. So far the bank account has not been located.

MARINE DYING FROM FALL

Hotel Proprietor Held After Man and Woman Plunge Downstairs.

A marine from League Island is dying at the Hahnemann Hospital and a woman, who says she is his wife, is in the same institution with a broken leg and internal injuries as a result of the two falling or being thrown down the stairway of a hotel at 8th and Vine streets early this morning.

Two men are under arrest on the charge of aggravated assault and battery. They were arraigned at Central station for a hearing.

The injured man is Theodore Baulig, 23 years old. The woman is Emma Davis, 1015 Winter street. Baulig has a fractured skull and other injuries. Physicians operated on him after he was admitted to the hospital, but they have little hope of saving his life.

The prisoners are Louis Williams, proprietor of the hotel, and a negro porter, Charles Floyd. They were arrested at the hotel by Special Policemen Barry Clarke and Ernest, of the 10th and Buttenwood streets police station.

According to the story told by the woman, she had started down the stairway when Williams pushed Baulig, who was following her. He fell, striking her, and both rolled down the stairs. Floyd denies this. He says Williams was asleep at the time, and that Baulig fell.

3,000,000 BRITONS TO TAKE FIELD AGAINST GERMANY

Kitchener's Plans Revealed by Revised Army Estimates.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—England will put at least 3,000,000 men in the field to fight the Germans. An idea of the plans of Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, revealing the strength of the British forces, was given today when the new army estimates were issued in revised form by the War Office.

The House of Commons will be asked to vote not the actual sum of money requested by the War Office for the equipment and maintenance of these forces, but an appropriation in round figures. The actual sum will be reserved in order to prevent the information from reaching England's enemies.

An appropriation necessary for a total of 3,000,000 men, in round figures, will be voted. This is an increase over the number of men originally requested by the War Office for a victory over Germany.

WITNESSES PUZZLE COURT

Conflicting Testimony Gives Judge Stakes a Hard Problem.

A look of hopelessness came over Judge Staake today when he heard the case of Joseph and Morris Buschels against Isaac and Solomon Lichtenstein. For nearly an hour the plaintiff and defendants filled the air with talk about $300 checks and rotten eggs. When the arguments had ceased the Judge said that, never in his 45 years' experience as a lawyer and judge, had he heard such a conflict of testimony.

Eliminating the legal phraseology the facts are these, according to the testimony: The Buschels seek to recover an alleged loan of $200, and say they gave the Lichtensteins a check for that amount in August, 1910. The Lichtensteins say they cashed a check for the Buschels because they appeared to be in need of the money and it was after banking hours.

Buschels conducts a butter and egg business at 351 South 2d street and has been arrested frequently, the police say, for selling rotten eggs. It is said that, in addition to serving a term in jail, he paid fines aggregating $500. The Lichtensteins contend the Buschels brought suit against them to recover the alleged loan because they refused to testify in the Buschels' behalf when they were arrested for selling rotten eggs.

Judge Staake, acting as committing magistrate in the Common Pleas Court, held the Buschels in $500 bail each for court on the charge of perjury.

IS YOUR NAME FRANK GULICK?

Probable Share in $9,000,000 Estate Awaits Missing Man.

Will Frank D. Gulick, address Philadelphia, 3511 stand up?

It is likely that he, with 11 other persons, will share in an estate valued at $9,000,000. According to a dispatch from Springfield, Mo., the maternal relatives of Henry Butterford, of New York, who died two years ago, have filed suit to prevent the estate being divided among the paternal cousins and aunts in Scotland.

Among those mentioned and standing second in the list is Frank D. Gulick, with the gloriously definite address of Philadelphia, Franklin H. Gulick, 4420 Larchwood street, and Dr. Frank W. Gulick, 300 South Broad street, the only two Gulicks in the city directory with an F in their names, eagerly asked for a look at the money and even offered to share the heritage if connection with the deceased or any of the other "cousins" mentioned could be established.

Philadelphia now claims the "show me" title, with two men, at least, anxiously waiting for Missouri to contest it.

MOTHER DIES OF GRIEF

Mrs. Frazier Succumbs After Mourning Son's Tragic Fate.

A few moments after declaring that she would welcome death, Mrs. Alexander Frazier, mother of William Abel, who was executed for the murder of Thomas Kane, a 12-year-old Philadelphia boy, on December 8, died today at her home, Manyunk avenue, near Jamestown, Roxborough.

Diabetes, physicians say, caused the death of Mrs. Frazier, but her friends say her end was hastened by the tragic incident which came into her life little more than a year ago.

Up to the time her son confessed she persisted in believing him innocent of the crime.

She was present during the man's trial, and when sentence of death was passed on her son she collapsed. She was carried home and had since been confined to her bed.
